How to reduce your company's resource costs and turn an Environmental Management System into a business advantage

Join one of four events in the Yorkshire and Humber Region

Workshops to help you reduce your costs

Many businesses spend around 4% of their turnover generating waste. The cost of waste is not just the cost of disposal but also includes wasted energy, water, raw materials, consumables and labour.

In this challenging climate the business case to seek cost advantages through resource efficiency is now stronger than ever.

Who should attend?

These seminars have been designed to benefit businesses who are ready, or thinking about taking the first steps to becoming more resource efficient in order to reduce waste and save money.

Because these events are non-technical they are perfect for managers, directors, environmental representatives and operational staff alike.

Whilst the tools and techniques covered are useful to businesses in all sectors, the majority of case study examples used will highlight those in manufacturing.
